

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An analyzer system has an analyzer software program for at least one of controlling an analyzer to perform one or more analysis procedures and analyzing results output by the analyzer. At least one job information corresponding to a specific analysis procedure is set in advance. The analyzer software program is configured to confirm the existence of and read out the job information. A job comprises data for linking the job information to the analyzer software program. A job representing device represents the job on a display. A job launching device launches the job by launching the analyzer software program through the job representing device to perform an analysis procedure.